Timeline Events in Christian Mission in Africa

BEN O. ONU
University of Port Harcourt, Nigeria.

Abstract. The history of Christianity is a fascinating story of the manifestation of the finger of God in the affairs of mankind. The church has passed through different stages of life, and “yet has hardly reached the period of full manhood in Christ Jesus”. Sequential presentation of church historical events seems to be “generally abandoned”. Chronicling church history developments allows for better view of the progress made and the connectivity of events. This paper aims at presenting the key events in the growth and development of Christianity especially in Africa in its progressive order. It applies the chronological or annalistic approach to bring in the natural flow of events. This is carried out in five main streams for better appreciation and understanding. The paper concludes that the arrival of missionaries of both the Reformation (Protestant) and Roman Catholic faith, and acceptability of the natives has given Christianity a strong hold in the African continent.

Keywords: Timeline, events, Christian mission, Africa

1. Preamble

Chronology has to do with any system used to order time and to place events in the progression in which they occurred. The systems used to record human history, vary in scope, accuracy, and method according to the purpose, degree of sophistication, and skills of the peoples using them (Encyclopædia Britannica, 2015). This timeline of Christian missions chronicles the global expansion of Christianity through listing of the most important missionary outreach events. The history of the Church is a vital part of the Orthodox Christian faith which is significantly defined by their continuity with all those who have gone and died before, those who first received and preached the truth of Jesus Christ to the world, those who helped to formulate the expression and worship of the faith, and those who continue to move forward in the unchanging yet ever-dynamic Holy tradition of the Orthodox Church.

There is a peculiarity relating to the African story of Christian history and Missiology. The insight which the timeline offers is critical for an inductive understanding of the point that Christianity is not alien to the African soil. It is fascinating to learn how that for about seven hundred years following the extinction of the North African Church, no Christian activity took place in that region. Thereafter, the missionaries arrived and established the faith across the continent. The increasing wave of Pentecostalism and modernism in Africa is taking many especially youths away from heritage of the Christian faith. Joseph Sittler said, “The map of God’s activity, then, is not a blank ocean between the apostolic shores and our modern day. So we need to remember-and search for our roots in-the luminaries, risk takers, and movements of the church through the centuries. To neglect them is not only to risk repeating past errors, it is to fall victim to a narrowing amnesia that leaves us floundering” (Onu, 2018, p. 97). The events recorded in this study are intended to bring to memory the developments in African Christian heritage. The paper uses chronological or annalistic approach to bring in the natural flow of events in the development of Christianity. This allowed for better examination of the progress made and the connectivity of events.

2. Streams of Christian Developments in Africa

There is no unanimity in the division of the number and length of the period in Christian history. Bruce L. Shelley (1995) and John Hunt (2008) divided the events into eight ages, namely: Jesus and the Apostles (6-70), Roman Catholic Christianity (70-312), Christian Roman Empire (312-590), Middle Ages (590-1517), Reformation (1517-1648), Reason and Revival (1648-1789), Progress (1789-1914), and Ideologies (1914-1996). Philip Schaff simply put the events under three principal parts. John Laux (2012) also presented the events in three sections; The Ancient church to the beginning of the Pontificate of Gregory the Great (AD 1-590), the Church in the Middle Ages (590-1517), and Modern times from the Protestant revolt to the present day (1517-1933). The events recorded herein under are part of our Christian heritage. They are intended to bring to memory the activities surrounding the dates in the understanding of Christian heritage and developments of the church particularly in Africa. This synopsis of the origin and development of Christianity particularly in Africa is presented in five main streams.

The first era is the history of ancient Christianity. It is the apostolic and orthodox period that reveals the activities of Jesus and his Apostles, Roman Catholic Christianity and Christian Empire. It emphasis on the role played by individuals from the Evangelist Mark, down the line to the Patriarchate of Athanasius and others. It is a period of oral tradition of transmission of Christian teaching to Africa, before the earliest gospel (Mark) was written, eye witnesses dispersing throughout Judea, Samaria, and Africa, the Conversion of Ethiopian eunuch, and treasurer to Candace (legendary) Queen of Ethiopian on his return to Africa. The preoccupation of this period is the very intellectual work of scholarly Church doctors or theologians like Origin and Augustine of Hippo who were helpful in the much required doctrinal orthodoxy.

The second period as gleaned from 590 through 1517 is the Medieval or Middle Ages and Roman (Iberian) Catholicism. It opened a fresh flood gate of Portuguese missionary activities in Africa.

The third phase is the great century reformation from the 16th century through 1789. It is the “age of Reformation (Protestantism) in conflict with Romanism, of religious liberty and independence in conflict with the principle of authority and tutelage, of individual and personal Christianity against an objective and traditional church system”. It is an era of enlightenment, reason and revival which furnishes details of established missionary societies especially of the Reformation (Protestant) groups.

The Modern Christian age spans from 1789 through 1970. It is the era of Colonialism and rooting of Christianity in Africa especially West Africa by European missionaries of the mainline churches. The church made significant progress with the emergence of African Initiated Churches which has made the church in Africa to wear nationalistic and indigenous garb.

The postmodern era revealed increase in the development of new Christian religious movements, church revival and prosperity preaching in Africa. It was a boom for individual church founders in expression of the call of God upon their lives. The revival fire in the mainline churches began to increase as well.

4. Conclusion

This survey has given illumination to the effect that Christianity in its earliest origin has its roots in the Northern African soil of Egypt. There existed from the very onset church fathers that succeeded Evangelists like St. Mark. These fathers such as St. Augustine and Tertullian played very prominent roles in the development of the Church. The incursions resultant from Muslim and Vandals attack on the Ethiopian and Egyptian churches annihilated Christianity for close to six hundred years. The arrival of missionaries of both Reformation and Roman Catholic faiths and acceptability of the natives has given Christianity a strong hold in the African continent with the emergence of African Christianity. Thus, the church in Africa is on the offensive with the gospel of salvation.
